The history of the homeland is, first of all, adorned with courage, bravery, enlightenment, justice, devotion to the people. There are many of our ancestors who have left us the highest examples of such qualities throughout their lives, and their memory is immortal.

In this regard, President Shavkat Mirziyoyev said: "We must pay special attention to inculcating in the minds of young people the invaluable heritage of our great scholars and writers, our saints, the courage of our invincible commanders and leaders, to strengthen their sense of national pride. the past is not in vain. the following are some of the effective measures taken by the great commander Amir Temur to ensure the security and stability of society.

It should be noted that ensuring security and stability in society has always been one of the top priorities of the head of state.

Including during the reign of Amir Temur, there were internal and external threats to the peace and tranquility of society. For this reason, Sahibkiran Amir Temur paid serious attention to the issues of peace and tranquility in society. our great ancestor, well aware that the vigilance, intelligence, and prudence of the ruler played a great role in maintaining security and stability, if he were empty, simple, and nicknamed

In which case he knew that the dangers within the country alone could disintegrate the state. It was believed that the violation of the laws in the host country, as well as non-compliance with them, would ultimately lead to injustice and disunity of the state. Amir Temur promoted the program "Power is in justice" because he knew that a strong state was achieved as a result of just rule, and that being a powerful nation came from a just attitude to the people.

The Tuzuklar, a product of the Sahibkiran's thinking, gave information about the factors that could lead to the destabilization of the country let no one dare to bind or cut a spot from his chin. but keep them in captivity until they have renounced their claim, so that war may not break out of the kingdom of God "[2.91].

In this regard, Amir Temur preferred to resolve the issue peacefully rather than take drastic measures and allowed the rebels to think. if one of the grandchildren and relatives rebelled against the state, he was placed in a state of dervishes, his property confiscated. Given the demands and needs of the Middle Ages, it is clear that these measures served to maintain the stability of the country.

If we look at the situation in the international region, it should be noted that the period of Amir Temur was also a period of violent information struggles. In order to maintain the security and stability of their country, it was necessary to closely monitor the political developments in neighboring countries. The "Statutes of Timur" contain the following information: "Everywhere in the province, city and army should appoint writers of daily events to inform me about the actions of governors, citizens, soldiers, himself and foreign armies. foreign property entering and leaving the country, foreigners entering or leaving the country, caravans and reports of rule from every country, neighboring kings, their words, deeds, and scholars who came to me from distant lands, the words about fuzalo correctly to melet them write. I have ordered that different countries, knowing the news of the frontiers, the aims and intentions of the neighboring rulers, come to me and report it, so that we may take precautionary measures before anything happens "[2.120]. secretaries have been severely prosecuted for false and slanderous reports. The targets of caravans, merchants, tourists and other foreigners from abroad were also identified. It should be noted that some of the foreign merchants, sheikhs, tourists and other guests came to our country for other purposes. Similarly, spies were sent from Movarounnahr to other countries to report on events in other countries. Amir Temur, well aware of the importance of preventing the threat before eliminating it, considered the events in the neighboring countries to be related to the security of his country. he sent his spies under the guise of sheikhs, merchants, beggars, and others to the lands to be aware of the situation in other lands, and so on.

Defined foreign policy directions. Evidence from spies disguised as tourists, merchants, and astrologers was often considered in closed meetings, and threats to the country's integrity were addressed in a timely manner.

In the time of Amir Temur, security was the responsibility not only of law enforcement officers or government officials, but of all citizens. Even official or other ceremonies required everyone to be vigilant and vigilant in palaces, urdu, and other places.

In order to ensure security, soldiers, commanders, commanders, captains and captains had to enter the office, parties with hats, boots, shovels, collars, daggers, swords [4.106]. In order to eliminate the threat of war in the region, Amir Temur first of all considered the issue of guarding the palace and the devon important. In the reign of Amir Temur, a separate army unit was established for the security service not only in peacetime but also in time of war. one-third of the four infantry troops assigned to the security service were assigned to guard the border. Two-thirds of the army was always ready for the kingdom. [4.159]

That is, thousands of people who had undergone special training in the Sahibkiran kingdom guarded the state's main administrative building, the army, the borders, the kingdom in general. There are also rules for mobilizing the army in the event of a major threat to the country. In the dangerous Middle Ages, Sahibkiran managed to maintain peace and stability in the state by improving the country's defense.

It should be noted that Amir Temur also tried to strengthen the military to maintain stability in the regions. the military policy created in the country served as a great force in maintaining the peace, stability and integrity of the state in the kingdom.

Amir Temur further improved the military sphere through economics, martial arts and diplomacy. In the Middle Ages, when the threat of war was high, special attention was paid to the military system, which laid the foundation for Amir Temur's active participation in the region and his rise to prominence

Amir Temur in his time did not take drastic measures to resolve the issue peacefully, to study the political situation in the neighboring country carefully, to prevent it rather than to eliminate the threat, to strengthen security in the region, injustice, familiarity preferred to fight and prevent oppression. It should be noted that the national spirit in the younger generation is formed on the basis of the rich past of the nation, the great spiritual heritage of ancestors, vast experience, enduring traditions. the experience of the great Sahibkiran left to us in ensuring the security and stability of society, justice and equality in society, good and mutually beneficial neighborliness, interethnic harmony, religious tolerance, constant vigilance and vigilance, constant readiness to defend the country Proud of the age-old values of our people, these values serve as an inexhaustible source of high confidence in the noble work being done in our country to build a free and democratic society in modern conditions, giving hope for a prosperous and prosperous future. as a result, a strong national spirit and national pride as in the text will be formed and strengthened.
