Today in our country it is important to create a new image of Uzbekistan, to build a strong civil society, to harmonize national, spiritual and religious values, to implement democratic principles.

the attitude to life in the east is based on the idea of upbringing, spirituality and perfection. This, in turn, requires the pursuit of happiness and goodness, which serve to ensure the spiritual upbringing of man, as well as the need to live on the basis of these principles. it is in the ability of man to comprehend, to comprehend, that which is different from other living beings, that is higher than them. The rich spirituality and enlightenment formed in the East laid the foundation for the development that led to a sharp turn in different periods of human history, in different regions. it is a fact that ignorance and superstition have long been condemned in our country, and spirituality, enlightenment, religious tolerance and thinking have been widely allowed. In our country, the enrichment of the human spiritual world, living on the basis of spirituality, upbringing, striving for perfection, all-round perfection have been glorified as the highest values. regardless of people's nationality, race, social origin and religious beliefs, the main criterion is the appreciation of human humanity, the worthiness of the sacred name of man. In this process, of course, the existence of such glorious goals as mutual trust, mutual respect, religious tolerance between peoples and nations plays an important role in shaping the spiritual upbringing of man.

"Another important issue that always worries us is the behavior of our young people, in a word, their worldview. Today, times are changing rapidly. It is the young people who feel these changes the most let the youth conform to the requirements of their time. But at the same time, don't forget your identity. May the call of who we are and what a generation of great beings always resonate in their hearts and motivate them to remain true to themselves. How do we achieve this? education, upbringing and only at the expense of upbringing, says President Sh.M.Mirziyoev [1].

Indeed, one of the most important issues today is to provide patriotic, self-sacrificing, courageous and courageous military personnel who can innovate, contribute to the development of the country in building a civil society, master the secrets of their profession. for this it is necessary to increase the efficiency of the military education process. Before embarking on this task, future officers will not only manage their personnel using traditional military methods, organize their education system, but also look at the world experience, take the best from them and adapt them to the national education system to equip servicemen with the ability to work with a military team, to develop team management skills, to know that a competitive team can win only with their knowledge and mutual understanding and culture of team members should. One of the problems that has been on the minds of specialists, modern psychologists and educators in recent years is the issue of increasing the motivation of servicemen to serve in the military.

the problem of motivation is important in the structure of the person and is a basic concept used in explaining human behavior and activities. The most important of these is the motive of affiliation. The affiliation motive belongs to the highest level of the hierarchy of personal needs, it is a fundamental and basic motive of the nature of the person, and one of the most important features develops only in the context of human interaction with each other.

The need for affiliation is understood as establishing, maintaining and strengthening positive relationships with people. A person with this need not only aspires to people and enjoys positive emotional communication, but also accepts it as an important vital meaning in human relationships. and sometimes this need becomes so important that it takes precedence over other needs. because affiliation motivation is a set of goals, needs, motives, such as the desire to communicate, the desire to know, self-emphasis, the desire for mutually beneficial cooperation, which motivate the serviceman to move to a mental, conscious communication process. which leads to the formation of moral behavior habits and conversational speech skills in the personality of the serviceman.

the level of formation of the affiliation motive in military-professional activity should become one of the priority issues, because affiliative interaction includes such processes as ease, confidence-building, mutual understanding and involvement, ability to unite the military community.

According to the social philosopher GJ Tulenova, "... the spiritual image of the nation is formed in different periods on the basis of certain opportunities and needs" [2].

Therefore, in shaping the moral image of servicemen, it is important to cultivate modern military personnel, keeping in mind our national traditions, customs, ethnopedagogical, ethnopsychological features.

when we look at the spiritual image from a psychological point of view, we can understand that spiritual need, like other needs, is a specific feature of the individual psyche, a process closely related to human will. The spiritual need reflects psychological phenomena, first of all, because this need is closely connected with the interests of society

Psychologist M.S. According to Toychieva, certain types of spiritual needs are formed on the basis of habituation to moral behavior. Leadership plays an important role in the formation of human moral qualities. Because leadership becomes the goal of the right life of behavior [3].

the desire to be in the company of other people in the activities of military personnel) is also reflected in the works of Mahmud Kashgari, one of the thinkers of the East. To eat honestly, to be whole, to be faithful, to be faithful in one's endeavors, to avoid gossip, to cover up the guilt of others, not to speak in vain, to wish good to all, to be accountable to one's country, to treat members of society with kindness, to purify one's morals to reconcile with, to sharpen the mind, to pay attention to the beauty of character. [6]

Proper formation of the motive of affiliation in the activities of servicemen allows to acquire communicative competence in the activities of military service, including the training of qualified personnel for the defense of the Motherland in the process of working with personnel.

we can see this in the fact that our great ancestor, great commander and statesman Amir Temur skillfully used affiliation factors in his military strategy.

Amir Temur achieved great victories as a result of maintaining strict discipline in his army. he paid great attention to the fighting spirit of his warriors and used various complex psychological and moral methods in the system of training his troops. he also organized competitions and games in his army, such as wrestling, hunting, horseback riding, and archery, in the organization of moral and spiritual training. These events were held to the sound of musical instruments of military-musical groups, such as trumpets, horns, drums, hurricanes. the humming sounds of musical instruments and the shouts of warriors were effectively used in battles.

If the process of moral education is the beginning of service activity, moral and spiritual preparation is its result. Based on these ideas, it can be said that moral and spiritual education is mainly theoretical, while moral and spiritual training is carried out mainly in practical ways. If the theory and practice are carried out closely, its effectiveness will be high there are factors that influence the formation of the affiliation motive in the military, and these factors include the following.

1. The motive of affiliation, especially the manifestation of affiliative behavior, depends on the diversity (style) of family relationships from childhood.
2. The relative need for affiliation is universal and applies to all people, regardless of age, gender, ethnicity, but its nature and content differ depending on the conditions of personal upbringing, professional approach and socialization.

to develop a communicatively competent specialist by achieving the strengthening of social behavior by combining affiliation and motivation for success in training of future servicemen in the period of professional occupation serves as the basis. a complex that includes multimedia, attraction and other technical methods, including interactive methods and forms of military education, special situational tasks, corporate training programs, an individual map of leadership success, to form this motivation in servicemen requires the use of pedagogical and psychological tools. In conclusion, in today's process of globalization, the Uzbek military must develop as a military that has its own opinion, its own worldview, its own educational potential, and, most importantly, its own voice and place in the international arena.
